Science to Find Way to Ward Off Death.

Man will live forever on earth without fear of death, except by accident, if modern science is successful in experiments now taking shape in the great scientific laboratories, according to Dr. Albert P. Mathews, professor of physiological chemistry at the University of Chicago. The immortality of the body depends simply upon the discovery of a diet which will keep intact the fundamental principle of the human cell, and it is probable that this will be found, Mr. Mathews believes.

Professor Mathews, who has been conducting remarkable experiments in regard to the artificial formation of life and the restoration of life by artificial means, announced his views in an article on "What is Death?" His view is that death is caused primarily by the cessation of respiration, which may be kept indefinitely if the proper relation between food and the fundamental cell substance is found.

Dr. Mathews has discovered that the breathing process causes the same reaction as that produced by alcohol on the substance "benzophenone" in the sunlight. The alcohol in this experiment decomposes, and the substance formed are sugar, aminoacids, proteids, and other components of the human cell.

The probability of a correct diet keeping up this "life reaction" is commented upon by Dr. Mathews as follows:

"Now, this reaction under perfect conditions should continue indefinitely, and so render the human body immortal. Unfortunately, however, it does not continue. It is the keen desire of all to find out why it does not continue and to change conditions so that it will continue as long as possible.

The chief cause of its cessation may be divided into obviously extrinsic and apparently intrinsic causes. The obvious external causes are the ordinary causes of death—accidents, assaults and taking of poison, the action of parasites and disease germs—these causes of death are relatively easily removed. They will be removed for the most part in the near future. These will remain apparently intrinsic causes of death, improsing feeding and incomplete excretion."

The Value of Terpentine for Household Pests.

I wish every housekeeper could fully realize the value of terpentine, and she would never be without a supply of it. The odor is clean and wholesome, and I know from experience that it is a sure protection against moths. Sprinkle a little of the terpentine in the bottom of trunks and drawers, and cover with a fresh newspaper. Also, saturate pieces of soft cloth, and place in the corners, away from the place in the corners, away from the clothes. In midsummer I often open them and tuck in a new supply without removing the articles. Keep a bottle of terpentine in the wardrobe or closet, and occasionally sprinkle a few drops around. It is good for fur or feathers or anything in which these pests live.

Another troublesome pest can be easily disposed of, and that is ants. Take tartar emetic and a little sugar, and mix with water and set the dish where they come. They will eat of this, get sick and leave in droves, and generally will not appear again during the season. Exchange.

What's the secret of happy, vigorous health? Simply keeping the bowels, the stomach, the liver and kidneys strong and active. Burdock Blood Bitters does it. 51-4

Beecher's Repartee.

Mr. Beecher's quickness at repartee, of which Americans knew well, was entirely equal to Irish demands upon it. One day in Ireland, after he had made an address to a Sunday-school, a bewitching young collier came up to where he stood chatting and said:

"Mr. Beecher, you have won my heart."

"Well," replied the great man quickly with a burst of a smile, "you can't get along without a heart so suppose you take mine?"

BEECHER AND INGERSOLL.

Mr. Beecher and Col. Bob Ingersoll were on the platform together at a public meeting, and Beecher went over and shook hands heartily with the great agnostic, though he knew that the act would bring a storm of criticism from narrow gauge souls. Then Ingersoll brought up one of his daughters and introduced her, saying:

"Mr. Beecher, here is a girl who never read the Bible." Bob delighted in shocking ministers, but he missed his fun that time, for Beecher quickly replied:

"If all heathen were so charming I am sure we would all become missionaries."

BEECHER IN THE SOUTH.

After the war Beecher made a lecture tour of the south and appeared at Mozart Hall, Richmond, with an address entitled, "The North and the South." He was rather doubtful as to the reception he would have, but he knew what he wanted and was determined to have it. No applause welcomed him as he appeared on the platform, but a few hisses were heard in the gallery. In the better rows of seats were some grim ex-Confederates—Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, Gen. Ross, ex-Gov. Smith, Gov. Cameron and others. Beecher fixed his eye directly on Lee and said (I quote a newspaper report of the incident):

"I have seen pictures of Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, sir, and I assume you are the man. Am I right?" The General slightly taken back by this direct address, nodded stiffly, while the audience bent forward, breathless with curiosity as to what was going to follow.

"Then," said Mr. Beecher, his face lighting up, "I want to offer you the right hand, which, in your way fought against me and yours a year ago, but which I would now willingly sacrifice to make the sunny south prosperous and happy. Will you take it, General?" There was a moment's hesitation, a moment of deathlike stillness in the hall, and then Fitzhugh Lee was on his feet, his hand was extended across the rooftops and was quickly met by the warm grasp of the preacher. At first there was a murmur, half of surprise and half of doubtfulness, from the audience; then there was a hesitating clapping of hands, and before Beecher had unloosed the hand of Robert E. Lee's nephew there were cheers such as were never before heard in old Mozart, though it had been the scene of many a war and political meeting. But this was only the beginning of the enthusiasm. When the noise had subsided Mr. Beecher continued:

"When I go back home I shall proudly tell that I have grasped the hand of the nephew of the great Southern Chieftain; I shall tell my people that I went to the Confederate capital with a heart full of love for the people whom my principles once obliged me to oppose and who can forgive as well as they can fight."

Five minutes of applause followed and then Mr. Beecher, having gained the hearts of his audience, began his lecture and was applauded to the echo. That night he entered his carriage and drove to his hotel amid shouts such as have never greeted a Northern man in Richmond since the war.

WIT OF INGERSOLL.

Ingersoll himself was as quick as the quickest at repartee. One day a malignant believer in an awful fate for the wicked after death asked him:

"Are you trying to abolish hell?"

"Yes" said Ingersoll.

"Well, you can't do it."

"You'll be sorry if I don't," the Colton replied.

Agnostic though he was, Ingersoll is frequently quoted by preachers, for in one respect he was much like the rest of them—he was never wearied of urging men to right living, not through any fear of eternal punishment, but because goodness is its own excuse for being. No pastor was ever more severe than in his condemnation of anything mean and wicked in human life. In his lighter moments he was one of the merriest companions that any one could wish to meet.

Poultry Notes.

If hens must be kept in, the poultry arrangements should be made for the admission of plenty of air; otherwise the poor birds will have oppressively hot bedrooms these warm nights.

It will pay to keep the trim little pullets growing, and if you want winter eggs don't let present prices tempt you to sell the earliest pullets along with the cockerels.

It is a pretty good plan where chicken thieves are not troublesome to shut up the poultry house during the hot months and compel the hens to roost outside. In thick leaved trees or under an open shed they will have protection from rains, be cooler and trample less with lice. When the cool nights come they will return to the houses more vigorous for their open air treatment.

Eggs are not very profitable at present prices. It is better, we think, to sell fewer eggs and allow a number of hens to raise summer broods of chicks. While the chicks are being raised the hens are resting from egg production and in the autumn when eggs are scarce and high they will be ready to lay again. While prices are low is the time to give the hens a needed rest; then the moulting period will have little effect on them.

When the poultry runs have been used for a long time and the earth becomes saturated with droppings and disease germs it can be disinfected and purified by saturating it with a 5 per cent solution of carbolic acid and applying a liberal coating of lime. After a few days roll or spade it up and level it.

It has been found that when fowls are inclosed on small areas, in plum or peach orchards, they serve to protect the trees in a large degree from insects. Those who have been most successful do not give the fowls a large range, but rather plant the trees in the poultry yard, thereby using them to provide shade for the fowls in summer.

Turkeys are sure profit producers on the large farm where they can have a wide range. In their extensive wanderings at this season they pick up the greater part of their entire living. The worst drawback with these fowls is the habit of roosting away from home, and this can be avoided by regular feeding at night. When the young turkeys find out they are sure of their supper they are very apt to "show up." But if the owner gets too busy or careless to have their feed ready and provide drinking water he is sure to have trouble in this respect.

Japan's Patch-Work Farms.

Why, the whole country looks like a piece of crazy patch-work, in shape as fantastic as ever our grandmother cut from old scraps of silk and velvet to piece together a "cat-stitch" done in multi-colored flosses. And this is why, perhaps, in the wheat-thrashing and rice-planting season the country looks so lively, crowded as it is with laborers, a whole family on each little patch of ground bobbing about under their huge mushroom hats. And they are happy, these odd little folks, although the best of them make hardly more than $50 to $75 a year, upon which families must be reared and educated. Riding in a jinrikisha along the narrow roads between the rice fields, one passes group after group, knee deep in the unspeakably filthy mud, laughing and singing—or making strange, unusual sounds which they call singing—and playing about their work like a lot of happy children. The process of rice raising is not the simplest thing in the world; and, considering the fact that there are practically no farm animals in Japan, and only the most primitive of agricultural implements, with which half the farm land has been literally made in terrace beds upon the mountain slopes, the success attained by the people is remarkable—Eleanor Franklin, in Leslie's Weekly.

AMAZING.

It is amazing how many mothers will give their children medicines containing violent and dangerous drugs for bowel and stomach disorders, when better results, with absolute safety, can be obtained by the use of a pure, pleasant, harmless remedy like Dr. Caldwell's (laxative) Syrup Pepsin. Try it once. Sold by W. S. Lloyd at 50c and $1.00. Money back if it fails.

TOO BUSY TO BE KIND.

"I sometimes think we women nowadays are in danger of being too busy to be really useful," said an old lady thoughtfully. "We bear so much about making every minute count, and always having some work or course of study for spare hours, and having our activities all systematized, that there is no place left for small, waiside kindnesses. We go to see the sick neighbor, and relieve the poor neighbor, but for the common everyday neighbor, who has not fallen by the way, so far as we can see, we have a minute to spare. But everybody that needs a cup of cold water isn't calling the fact out to the world, and there are a great many little pauses by the way which is no waste of time. The old-fashioned exchange of garden flowers over the back fence and friendly chats about domestic matters helped to brighten weary days, and brought more cheer than many a sermon. We ought not to be too busy to inquire at school or to be interested in the girl away from the mother's lonely heart to feel that some one else cares for that which means so much to her. Especially we ought not to be too busy to give and receive kindnesses in our own home." May no one be able to say of us that we are too busy to be kind!—The Young Woman.

SPLITTING HEADACHE.

Can be often relieved by a nerve sedative, but the scientific way of treating a headache is to go right down to the real cause, or root of the trouble, and cure it with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is the only perfect cure for headache, dizziness, constipation, and is free from the dangerous after-effects which so frequently follow the use of headache powders. Try it. Sold by W. S. Lloyd at 50c and $1.00. Money back if it fails. 51-4

Resins.

As a result of the charges made by Mr. Richard Cheatham, of Atlanta, Secretary of the Southern Cotton Association, that information, as to the cotton crop was given out to speculators in advance of the regular report issued by the Department, an investigation was made by Secretary Wilson, which now develops that Mr. Cheatham's charge was well founded. It was developed that one Edwin S. Holmes, an assistant in the office of Statistician Hyde, has been regularly selling the information to brokers in New York and the figures thus given them in advance of their publication were used to manipulate the market. Mr. Holmes has been dismissed from the Government service, and will be prosecuted if it is found there is any law to warrant such prosecution. It is not claimed that Statistician Hyde is guilty of any misconduct or dishonesty, but he is blamed for not discovering the leak in his department.

Secretary Wilson will in future assume personal responsibility for the safe-guarding of crop statistics until they are given out for publication.

Mr. Hyde, because of some refection, has resigned.

CURE FOR HAY FEVER

W. S. Lloyd Says Hyomei Will Give Relief—Sold Under Guarantee.

W. S. Lloyd desires us to announce that when Hyomei is used as a preventive, or a cure, there will be no hay fever. He advises daily treatment with Hyomei for two or three weeks before the usual time for the annual appearance of hay fever. If this is done the attack will be prevented. However, if the preventive treatment is not started soon enough, and the disease makes its appearance, use Hyomei six or seven times daily, and relief will be given at once.

There is no stomach dosing when Hyomei is used. Breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, its medicated air reaches the minutest air cells, killing all germs and sooths healing the irritated mucous membrane.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1, extra bottles 50 cents. It is the only treatment for hay fever sold by W. S. Lloyd under a guarantee to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

Baby Born On Trolley Car.

Mrs. Gusie Hollender, aged 24, of 105½ Eighth street, Manhattan, set out for an outing in Queen's county. On a car of the Grand street and Newtown line she became ill and several women in the car went to her aid, says the New York Sun. At their request the conductor put the other passengers off the car, the blinds were drawn and the car was sidetracked.

A hurry call for an ambulance was sent to the Eastern District Hospital, but before the ambulance arrived a large crowd had gathered and four policemen were necessary to handle it.

When Dr. Cohen appeared Mrs. Hollender gave birth to a bouncing boy baby. At the request of the woman he removed her and child to her home in the ambulance.

Farmer Daugherty's Remarkable Crop of Alfalfa.

Mr. R. P. Daugherty, of the Cedar Creek section, was in town one day last week and informed the News of a most remarkable crop of which he has raised this year on his farm near Cowley, this county. Last spring he put out an eight-acre crop of alfalfa which he also sowed in oats as a nursing crop. About June 5, when the oats were just fixing the head, or as the farmers say, were in the boot, Mr. Daugherty mowed the mixed oats and alfalfa, reaping a very fine yield. He then went on a week's visit to friends in Larue county and on his return found, much to his surprise, that the crop had grown so rapidly he could scarcely tell that it had ever been cut. On July 3, in about one month from the first cutting, he removed, re-icing another large yield of alfalfa and oats in full head. To mend the matter this same field had been in millet last year, and a good deal of the old millet was turned under in the April breaking so that at the second cutting there appeared also half a crop of volunteer millet. Mr. Daugherty expects to reap another fine yield of alfalfa off this same piece about the middle of August.

For Sale.—Two fine farms; 144 acres good land at $40 an acre; 345 acres in Logan county, finely improved and good, 10 miles from county seat, cheap, $5,500. Other farms cheap. I handle only bargains. W. H. BLAKELEY, Bowling Green, Ky.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

WE ARE AUTHORIZED TO ANNOUNCE JAMES L. ROBERTSON AS A CANDIDATE FOR JAMES L. MCGOWINNICK, SUBJECT TO THE ACTION OF THE BIRMINGHAM PARTY.

WHOSE SON NEXT?

So events in our town since Friday noon show the terrible havoc wrought by the devil as he wings men and women on to destruction. There are influences or agencies of our own making which hasten this destructive work. Does it not seem strange that sensible people will thoughtfully license or sanction the saloon, the brothel and the gambling house, where sin is perfected in its damnation? There is a difference between toleration and sanction. Think of it! Men in control of city, county and State councils selling for so many dollars the permit to debauch and damn our sons and daughters! There may be some excuse for unbelievers and infidels so acting, but how can any man, who has named the name of Christ, shut his eyes to the great moral principle involved, trample underfoot the sacredness of human character and life, forget or violate the laws of God, mar his own manhood and consider not the weak brother? To the Christian manhood are we to look for the righting of these wrongs, the dissipation of that stupor or darkness which rests like a great pall over our city, county and State. If the light is that in us darkness, how great is that darkness! O, Christian fathers and mothers, save yourselves and your children from impending doom. Say not there is safety and peace: while gambling dens, saloons and brothels exist in our town by permit or toleration. Whose son will next fall? Whose daughter will next walk in the way of death? Will it be yours?

WAKE UP.

Is gambling, drunkenness and impurity in woman more heinous, more pitiable than in man? She is no greater a sinner than he. When a community rightly judges the moral quality of an act, the fallen man will be pitied as much as the fallen woman, and he will be as much a social leper—though he be boasted as the lord of creation. Again it is to be wondered at that young men are licentious and drunken, when fathers and mothers permit these known-to-be viles to come to see their daughters—the nicest young ladies in the town? Will soon change the color of snow? Will a skunk sweeten attar of roses? Will pitch add lustre to the diamond? Oh, you silly or sinful parents, wake up.

THIRTY-FIVE THE MINIMUM.

Ex-Speaker Bowles is to be commended in giving his views, which are backed by personal observation on this most important subject. The minimum age for eligibility to the Legislature or State Senate should be thirty-five years. At this age men are mature, with established characters, and if good the people will have found it out, and if bad there should be no place for such in either of these assemblies, for a man of questionable character is not worthy the confidence of the people, and a vice lator of the laws should not himself be a maker of laws. "I have seen youngsters from 21 to 23 years of age go to these assemblies high-minded, brilliant orators, and in three months thereafter return to their homes and friends gamblers, rakes or drunkards," says Mr. Bowles.

Save the young men.

Gov. Folk, of Missouri, was correct when before the Bar Association at Covington he said: "The grafters, the boodler and the election thief are non-partisan; the people have been deluded by them." This statement has much truth in it, and it is now time for the people to speak and to name the men for public trusts who are of much business according to their means.

A question which every man should consider is: "Am I my brother's keeper?" Sad is the fact that one should wreck himself or herself; doubly fearful and sad it is to wreck another. For these things an account must one day be given, where no perjured testimony will stand, no bribed jurors will appear, no flimsy excuses prevail. "Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord."

A JUST DECISION.

Judge Paynter, of the Court of Appeals, in a decision permits the State Auditor to include in his assessment against National banks invested in United States securities. This decision is far-reaching and is just, for all the owning of all the people should share alike. This, and this alone, is just and constitutional.

THINK ON THIS.

When crookedness in primaries results in defeats at the polls then parties will reform their primaries and politicians may become converted for the sake of rewards if for nothing more.

A Woman's Club of Louisville has recently been debating the question "How to keep husbands at home at night." We would suggest locking them out both night and day.

The heavy continuous rains are giving the weeds a fine start in the cornfields, but four weeks more of favorable weather will make the largest corn yield per acre Kentucky has enjoyed for many years.

Tax payers are mostly interested in knowing what becomes of the money paid into her State, county or municipal treasuries.

Will young men and women not learn lessons from the thoughtlessness, misfortunes and sins of others?

Man is the noblest work of God, yet fearful is the wreck wrought by sin. There are evidences round about us.

Has reason fled to brutish beasts, and only man is vile?

The wages of sin is death

On Friday afternoon after 3 o'clock Lutrell Fasett, aged 32, and unmarried, son of J. W. Fasett, of Flat Creek, was in this city delivering wheat. While here he drank some beer. Returning he stopped at Puss Johns' house, the resort for sinful, unfortunate and disreputable men and women. It is said that Joe, Fay, of unsavory reputation, makes his headquarters there, and was there when Fasett called. He and Fasett are strangers to the latter says. Fasett was unarmed. A verbal difficulty arose Fay pulled his pistol and fired. The first shot passed through the clothing. The second entered Fasett's body below the heart and passed out of back a little lower. Fasett says he told Fay before second shot was fired that he was unarmed. Fasett was taken to National Hotel and later to the home of Mrs. M. S. Lane, where he has been since. His condition has been serious. Fay was arrested and placed in county jail by Chief of Police Courtney and policeman Smith. He will be brought out this morning for examining trial.

In a lonely played, but interesting game Mt. Sterling was defeated by Carlisle by the score of 5 to 3 last Tuesday. With the score 3 to 2 in their favor, the locals went high in the air, making enough errors to allow Carlisle to clinch the game. Browning and Sill both pitched brilliant ball.

Mr. Sterling won the second game. Score 15 to 5. Yarnall's curves were driven to all parts of the lot. The feature of the game was the batting of the entire team, especially the batting of Will Campion, who made two three baggers and a single, besides being robbed out of a hit by the umpire. Brown on third played beautful game, while George Campion pitched in good form, keeping the Carlisle swatters guessing all the time.

On Thursday Mt. Sterling was defeated on the home grounds by Versailles in a listless game. Score 7 to 3.

On Monday the locals were again defeated by the Louisville Bankers. Score 5 to 1. George Campion pitched good ball with the exception of the fifth inning when he lost control, giving the base on balls and hitting three batters. In this inning Mt. Sterling bunched her errors to poor advantage.

FARM LIFE FOR ITALIANS.
Baron Planches Advises His Countrymen to Leave Cities and Take Up Farm.

Baron Edmundo Mayer Des Planches, ambassador from Italy to the United States, who is making a tour of the southern states, stopped in St. Louis a few days ago, and in the course of an address advised the Italians who come to this country to take up farming.

"The Italian immigrant, fresh from the shores of Italy, gets into New York first, because nearly all the ships enter at that port," said Baron des Planches. "He is uneducated, unpolished, and has but little money since he has paid his passage. He begins work immediately, and takes up anything his hands find to do. Sometimes he gets in blacking boots or pushing a banana cart. The pay is small and he has little opportunity of improving his mind. His children are brought up in the streets, and they follow in their father's footsteps. Occasionally an Italian will have enough money to get to some other city."

"What I desire is to induce these Italians in the cities to go to the country. There laborers are wanted, especially in the south. There is a great opportunity for Italians in truck farming, fruit raising and general agriculture in the south. Land is cheap and may be obtained and paid for in a few years. The immigrant who goes to the country finds a chance to send his children to school. He learns the customs of the people of the United States quicker, and thereby becomes a better citizen."

"It has been said that I am seeking to promote immigration. This is not so. My desire is to have my fellow countrymen who seek the United States make better citizens for the United States. I want them to have respect for the laws and in other ways so conduct themselves that they may reap the great advantages offered in this country. I advise all Americans coming here to become Americans as soon as possible and to do as the Americans do. In this way I feel that they will not be looked down upon. Some day, when I am dead, some of them may think of the time that des Planches sent them to the country, and they may give him thanks. That is all the credit I expect to get out of it."

DODGING REAL QUESTION.

She Did Not Question Lady's Reputation, It Was the Jersey That Didn't Suit.

A lady who intended to give a dinner to some friends at which the piece de resistance was to be duck shot by her husband on the shores of eastern Maryland, decided that none but the very best jelly should be served as an accompaniment to the dainty fare, relates Collier's Weekly.

So she proceeded to a gorgeous Broadway establishment, a place where one pays a quarter apiece for tomatoes and a dollar a stock for asparagus at certain seasons of the year. The jelly the cook of her husband did not appear to be just what she wanted, so she suggested another variety.

"But, madam," is the reply, haughtily, "this is the very best jelly you can buy. It is made by Mrs. McGuggin, of Brooklyn." And he pointed to the label on the jar.

"We never heard of it," meekly suggested the lady. "Are you sure it's all right? Do you guarantee it?"

Seeing that his customer was extremely mild of manner and perhaps to be easily rattled, the clerk smiled in a patronizing way. "Guaranteed!" repeated he, more haughtily than ever, "madam, we don't have to guarantee Mrs. McGuggin's jelly. Her name is enough. This lady, madam, has a reputation!"

"Oh, I have no doubt of that, I'm sure," broke in the mild-mannered lady, with a heightened color. "I'm not questioning the lady's reputation; it was the jelly, I assure you!"

CALLED ISLE OF THE LOST

Island of Saghalien Is Known by That Name Because No Criminal Ever Lives to Return.

Seventeen cents a day is said to be the cost of Maxim Gorky, the Russian novelist, to the Russian government for food. Gorky was recently arrested and immured in a solitary cell by the government for his complicity in the outbreak of the people. He is luxuriously fed in comparison with the Russian political prisoners and criminals on the Island of Saghalien. The allowance for these is seven and one-half cents for the same period.

Saghalien is an attenuated island lying off the eastern coast of Siberia, in the Sea of Okhotsk. Russia has used it as a penal colony since 1863. Among the people of Russia it is called the Isle of the Lost. It was well named by them. No person who is sent to this island ever returns. The government apparently desires to add to this impression of hopelessness by preventing as far as possible any description of the life lived there from reaching the people. It would have an atmosphere of gloom hang over the island. It would have exile to this forsaken spot mean the crossing of a yawning gulf into a world from which no word can return. There a false passport is not worth the trouble of writing it. Passport or no passport it makes no difference.

A few foreigners have been able to spend a short time on the island in recent years. It has usually been difficult to secure pictures of the life there.

Only those who are sentenced to penal service for life, because of some great crime, personal or political, are sent to Saghalien. The prisons are not great stone dungeons, such as those to which the American is accustomed. They resemble barracks, or great wooden warehouses. The stock ade around the portion devoted to the incarceration of the most violent criminals, if constructed around an orchard would only add to the fun of stealing the apples for an American boy. Leaving the prison, however, is like jumping from the frying pan into the fire, so the temptation to do so is not great. The main prison is divided into three parts. One is for the privileged convicts. The work shops and cells for the best behaved prisoners are here. The good conduct prisoners, who are permitted to go outside in the day to labor, occupy the middle part.

"Tell your troubles to a Policeman," but if you are in need of any of the foregoing, jump into the empty wagons and get a ride to the Main Street or "Ring the Bell," No. 107—"They'll find the Man, the Place, and the Money." "They'll Now."

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine has been so successful in curing the brain-wrecking disease that there is no reason to believe that even the most hopeless cases can be benefited, if not fully restored.

We will be pleased to refer any one thus afflicted to many who now enjoy the blessing of health, after years of hopeless suffering.

They have resided in San Francisco for the last five years. He has been rector there of the Episcopalian church of St. Mary the Virgin.

It is not because of diminished affection that Mr. and Mrs. Innes have decided to part, but because he believes he has received a call from the highest power to preach the gospel as taught by the Church of Rome.

When their separation has been sanctioned by the Pope, Mrs. Innes will enter one of the religious orders of the church, while her husband will spend his novitiate in Rome. For more than two years since he has left the Episcopalian church and has been a communicant of the Catholic church he has been studying with an eye single to the priesthood.

An Arkansas tobacco grower, William M. Cravens, formerly of this State, writes the Western Tobacco Journal that he had raised a double crop of white burley tobacco on the same land in the same year.

The tobacco was planted in May and matured in about eighty days. He let the suckers grow, which matured fully and cured up nearly as good as the first crop as they do not have frost there until November. He says from the two crops more than 2,000 pounds can be raised to the acre.

Husband to Be Priest and Wife Nun.

Priesthood for the husband, the wife a nun; this is the lifework of the Rev. and Mrs. Stephen Innes. The final steps will be taken in Rome, says the Philadelphia newspaper.

He was a Philadelphian, son of the Rev. Robert F. Innes, who lives in Wynnewood, and who founded the Philadelphia Home of the Merciful Savior for Crippled Children, an Episcopalian institution.

Mrs. Innes was Miss Louise Smithers, daughter of S. F. Smithers, a wealthy New York banker.

They have resided in San Francisco for the last five years. He has been rector there of the Episcopalian church of St. Mary the Virgin.

It is not because of diminished affection that Mr. and Mrs. Innes have decided to part, but because he believes he has received a call from the highest power to preach the gospel as taught by the Church of Rome.

Heals Burns and Cuts Without leaving ugly scars.

A Louisville Chemist has succeeded in inventing a salve which is greatly appreciated by every mother and housekeeper, owing to the peculiar and quick manner in which it heals burns, cuts and blisters. The principle of the salve is to draw the skin together.

It goes straight to the interior cells, soothing and nourishing the injured skin. It is applied to the cut or burn, and it is soon healed. The salve is figured with ugly scars and blisters from burns and cuts. The conditions however have been changed since Paracelsus first used it. The price is a house price.

This new remedy is a household necessity, and mothers will find it a great convenience when traveling with old salves and liniments. Every householder should keep Paracelsus in the home all the time. Druggists all over the country are putting Paracelsus in stock, and if you go to the drugstore, ask him to get it for you. If however he won't do that, order direct from the manufacturer. Paracelsus is $1.00 per bottle, and $1.50 bottles. Manufactured by The Paracelsus Company, Louisville, Ky.

GUARD AGAINST GERMS

Keep Well by Strengthening the Stomach in Summer With Mi-o-na.

Everyone with weak digestion should use Mi-o-na at this season and so strengthen the stomach that disease germs can have no effect whatever. This remarkable remedy puts the whole digestive system in healthy, clean and sweet state that fermentation of the food cannot exist, that any disease germs which may enter the stomach will be destroyed, and food will be so readily assimilated that a rapid and healthy increase in flesh will result.

Nervousness and sleeplessness come more often from a weak stomach than from any other cause; headache, back-ache, and rheumatic pains are directly caused by an acid condition of the stomach. Mi-o-na corrects all this, prevents the formation of acids, and nervousness, kidney trouble, or rheumatism, is quickly cured.

Ask W. S. Lloyd to show you the guarantee under which he sells Mi-o-na. Price 50 cents. It costs nothing unless it cures.

How One Man Succeeds.

During the last of June I sold a couple of dozen old hens, and later about the first of August, I sell again just before mounting.

The idea of these two sales is to reduce numbers and preserve egg-laying profit. I cull in these two sales and thus enhance the flock. I carry something over 100 hens. Barred Rock and Single Comb Leghorn.

Shade is an important item in hot weather. I plant plum, cherry, peach and pear in wired-in lots for shade. Water is given fresh some times three times per day during extreme heat. I aim to keep down poisonous weeds and to have shelter from rain and storm.

Sometimes, I add venetian red, procured at stores, five or six tablespoons in half gallon drinking vessel as a tonic.

I give sweet and buttermilk almost daily. Milk keeps digestion and adds to the health of the flock.

They have dust bathes under the coal-house, smoke-house, and granary and they use them.

About the 1st of July I wash the coops, cleaning thoroughly. I remove perches of willow and supply new ones, close the coop and burn sulphur to destroy lice, burn lice infested nests, shut the hens out of the coops as a roosting place.

The hens go to the trees, barn and wagon shed to roost in hot weather.

Before the severe heat comes on I keep the window open in coop at night that are wired over for protection, for ventilation and have screen door made of light material that adds coolness and a dry atmosphere.

I feed sulphur in butter-milk to aid feather production during the molt. I also feed lightly some prepared poultry specific now and then and have added a little tincture of iron to their drinking water. Should disease appear doubt your care and efforts.

I aim to feed them corn, wheat, oats and corn bran, as I think they need.

I keep a load of gravel in the barn-yard for them and keep oyster shell where they can get it for grit.

In this way I've brought through the old stock, aiming only to keep none over two or three years of age, a number of seasons with very little loss. — R. H. Callahan, in Successful Farming Journal.

SHE HAD THE REAL KNACK

Woman Lifting Heavy Bundle Aided by Engineer Who Exploited Her Strength.

"Skilled workmen will handle loads of almost incredible weight, even though they may not be particularly muscular," said an engineer who was conversing with a friend. "It's all a knack. They have little tricks of the trade which they employ; most of it is the balancing order." The Chicago Daily News tells how the statement was illustrated.

"If you will notice," continued the engineer, "you will observe that a person who does the same thing many times soon learns to do it easily, and that applies even to lifting and carrying weights. Now, here is a case in point. Do you see that pile of boards there on the curb? That Italian woman is getting firewood from the scraps and bits across the street. She has, I venture to say, all of a hundred pounds of wood in that pile. She will put that on her head and walk away with it, carrying a bigger load than you or I can lift. Just wait here a minute and you will see how easily she does the trick."

The two stopped beside the board, and just because they stopped and looked another man stopped, too. Soon a fourth man and then a boy joined the group, and before the woman had returned with the rest of her salvage quite a crowd of curious people had gathered around her pile of wood.

In view of her conspicuousness, the woman plodded across the street. She lifted one end of the pile, slipped a piece of rope under it and looped it around the boards. Then she fastened the other end in the same way. Next she drew from under her skirt a cushion, which she placed firmly on her head. The engineer pulled his friend forward.

"Now watch her tackle it," he whispered, eagerly. The woman, a spare, lean creature, moved toward the place where the engineer stood. Quietly lifting one end of the pile of boards, she turned to him and peremptorily ordered him: "Here, you, take a hold-a-here!"

Before he knew what he was doing, the engineer found himself lifting his end of the boards, while the woman, stooping, lifted the other and she got under the pile at the same time. Then she "hunched" her head forward until she had the boards poised on the cushion.

"Now let a go!" she ordered, and stalked off.

"It's quite a knack," said the engineer's friend, with a grin, but the engineer was so busy digging a splinter from the ball of his thumb that he failed to make any reply.

Benefit of a Rural Life.

Fresh country air is wholesome and a sovereign remedy for many of the ills that afflict the weary city dweller. The tendency in this country has been too much to crowd into the great cities, and many of the poor of the slums and overtaxed tenements would be greatly benefited if they could be removed to the farms.

The magazines that encourage the love of rural life are doing a great work, and not the least feature of their mission is the cultivation of the aesthetic quality. They encourage the love for the beautiful in nature that will find in the preservation of the beauty of the natural world the best way to health.

Uncle Sam's deficit of last year comes to about 30 cents apiece for his 80,000,000 nieces and nephews, big and little. It seems as if we could have scraped along with 30 cents' worth less, just for the sake of applying as sound business sense to our governmental affairs as to our private enterprises. — Boston Transcript.

Tobacco is a profitable crop provided the grower does not allow his land to become impoverished. While the majority of growers seldom make mistakes in its cultivation, yet when it comes to selling the crop they are not so careful as may be required. High prices will be obtained if the tobacco is sorted, separating the short from the long, the light from the dark, and the imperfect from the good, as every grade varies from the other in price. The buyer of tobacco usually makes a close examination, and if the tobacco is well assured inspection is facilitated, and the grower makes a reputation that will assist him in securing better prices in the future.
